26 its counsel, Karen P. Hewitt, United States Attorney, and Steve 27 Miller, Assistant United States Attorney, and hereby files its 28 response and opposition to defendants' above-referenced motions in limine. Said response is based upon the files and records of this

1 case, together with the attached statement of facts, memorandum of 2 points and authorities.

3 I

4 STATEMENT OF FACTS

5 On September 4, 1994, defendant RAMON ESPERANZA CARRILLO was 6 convicted of bribery and of unlawfully carrying a firearm in a tavern
7 in a Dallas, Texas court and sentenced to 3 years in prison.

8 On September 24, 1997, defendant was ordered deported by an 9 immigration court. Defendant's case was not decided during a mass 10 deportation hearing. Defendant hired an attorney to contest the 11 deportation and entered admissions of the allegation of the OSC 12 through his attorney. The sole issue at the hearing was whether 13 defendant was entitled to 212(c)relief based upon the nature of his 14 prior felony conviction. The immigration judge denied his request and 15 issued an order with written findings. Defendant appealed the ruling 16 to executive office for Immigration Review and the decision was 17 affirmed on March 8, 2000. Defendant was deported.

18 On February 27, 2007, defendant was arrested in Nona Ana County
19 in New Mexico and charged with 8 U.S.C. § 1326.

20 On February 29, 2008, defendant was convicted of 8 U.S.C. § 1326
21 in the District of New Mexico and was sentenced to 15 months prison.
22 After his conviction in New Mexico, defendant was removed through El 23 Paso Del Norte, Texas on April 1, 2008.

24 Nine days later, on April 10, 2008, Border Patrol agents from the 25 Boulevard Sector in San Diego followed a set of six footprints on a 26 trail and located defendant in the brush four miles north of the 27 border and 25 miles east of the Tecate Port of Entry. The agents 28 discovered defendant while he hid among a set of boulders with five

1 other aliens. In the field, defendant admitted that he was a Mexican 2 citizen with no legal right to be in the United States.

3 When the agents advised defendant of his Miranda rights, 4 defendant invoked his right to remain silent.

5 II

6 POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

7 A. THE GOVERNMENT HAS ALREADY GIVEN NOTICE OF 404(B)
8 EVIDENCE AND INTENDS TO IMPEACH WITH PRIOR FELONIES

9 Defendant moves to exclude evidence of other acts under Rule 10 404(b) and exclude evidence of defendant's prior felonies under Rule 11 609. As this court is aware, defendant has a prior conviction in the 12 district of New Mexico for 8 U.S.C. § 1326. Furthermore, prior to his 13 deportation, defendant applied for immigration status. After he was 14 granted status to remain in the country, he was convicted of 15 possession of a firearm and bribery. During his deportation hearing, 16 defendant made judicial admissions of the allegations in the OSC and 17 only contested the issue whether his conviction qualified him for a 18 212(c) relief.

19 This court ruled that defendant's admissions during his guilty 20 plea did not qualify as 404(b) evidence. Though his prior act of 21 applying for immigration status is inextricably intertwined with the 22 relevant evidence in this case, to the extent that defendant argues 23 that it is evidence under 404(b), the Government intends to offer that 24 evidence. The Government also intends to offer his prior admissions 25 at his deportation hearing and guilty plea to establish his alienage.

26 In the event defendant elects to testify, the Government intends 27 to use the fact that he has a felony conviction to impeach his 28 testimony. To the extent that defendant's testimony contradicts facts

1 established by his conviction for 1326, the Government intends to 2 examine those inconsistencies on cross-examination.

3 B. DEPORTATION DOCUMENTS MAY BE USED AS EVIDENCE OF ALIENAGE

4 Defendant moves in limine to exclude documents from the A-file
5 as inadmissible evidence and to limit the A-file evidence on the issue
6 of alienage. Essentially, defendant's motions in limine are attempts 7 to skirt around the fact that: 1) defendant is an alien; 2) defendant 8 was deported because he is an alien; and 3) the entire process for 9 deporting individuals from the United States is designed to remove 10 people who are other than U.S. citizen (i.e. "aliens").

11 Defendant argues that this court should limit the relevance of 12 the documents related to defendant's deportation as not bearing upon 13 defendant's alienage. It is true, under United States v. Hernandez, 14 105 F.3d 1330, 1333 (9th Cir. 1996), that the court held that the 15 deportation, in and of itself, was insufficient to establish a 16 defendant's alienage. However, subsequent precedent out of this 17 district also held that the deportation order and defendant's 18 statements are sufficient to establish alienage. United States v.
19 Ramirez-Cortez, 213 F.3d 1149, 1158 (9th Cir. 2000).

20 In fact, the court in United States v. Parga-Rosas, 238 F.3d
21 1209, 1214 (9th Cir. 2001), stated:

22 Proof of an Alien Registration File in his name, his 23 application for an immigrant visa, his notice to appear at 24 a deportation hearing and order of deportation, his warrant 25 of deportation, a certificate of nonexistence of 26 application for legal re-entry, together with testimony by an immigration officer that Parga-Rosas stated at his deportation hearing that he was a native and citizen of Mexico, suffices.

27 Therefore, defendant's motion to limit the relevance of the 28 deportation documents should be denied because established case law

1 authorizes the jury to consider the deportation as one of the factors 2 in evaluating whether defendant is an alien.

3 Defendant also argues that evidence of an alien's deportation is 4 insufficient to establish alienage because of the lower standard of 5 proof. However, in this particular, there was a judicial finding that 6 defendant was an alien beyond a reasonable doubt because he was 7 convicted of 8 U.S.C. § 1326 in New Mexico. Though a prior conviction 8 for 8 U.S.C. § 1325 or 1326 is not res judicata that bars a defendant
9 from asserting U.S. citizenship, it is relevant admissible evidence 10 that is proof of a defendant's alienage. United States v. Smith-11 Baltiher, 424 F.3d 913 (9th Cir. 2005), United States v. Bejar-12 Matrecios, 618 F.3d 81 (9th Cir. 1980).

13 In Bejar-Matrecios, the court held that the error in admitting 14 the Judgment and Commitment of the appellant's prior conviction was 15 that the court did not give a limiting instruction informing the jury 16 that the relevance of the document was to establish alienage. Id. at 17 84. In the present case, the Government would offer the evidence of 18 defendant's conviction through the certified docket and request this 19 court give a limiting instruction. The Government would not offer the 20 Judgment and Commitment as an exhibit if defendant stipulated to his 21 alienage or this court was willing to take judicial notice that there 22 was a prior judicial finding that defendant was an alien.

23 Absent such a stipulation or judicial notice, the Government 24 would also seek to introduce the immigration court's judicial findings 25 to establish alienage. Such a memorandum was found admissible in 26 United States v. Ballesteros-Selinger, 454 F.3d 973 (9th Cir. 2007).

27 Therefore, defendant's motion to limit the relevancy of the 28 deportation should be denied because the fact of his deportation, when

1 viewed in context with other relevant evidence, becomes proof of 2 defendant's alienage.

3 C. DEFENDANT'S CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS ARE NOT 4 VIOLATED BY USE OF THE A-FILE DOCUMENTS

5 Defendant argues that the court should exclude admission of the 6 A-file documents because the immigration court used a lower standard 7 of proof and defendant did not have an opportunity to confront the 8 witnesses upon whose hearsay the immigration judge based his decision.
9 Defendant can hardly complain about the information upon which the 10 immigration judge relied because defendant availed himself of the 11 opportunity to contest his deportation. When defendant was facing 12 deportation, the hearing was continued four times for defendant to be 13 represented by counsel. At the final hearing, defendant's attorney 14 entered admissions to all the allegation of the OSC and contested the 15 issue whether the prior conviction disqualified him for relief under 16 212 (c) or (h). Therefore, defendant has no room to complain about 17 the source of the court's information because the immigration based 18 his finding that defendant was an alien upon information provided by 19 defendant.

20 D. COUNSEL CAN INSPECT THE DOCUMENTS
21 BEFORE TRIAL

22 The government has no objection to defendant's counsel reviewing 23 the certified document. Once the documents are certified, counsel can 24 inspect them at a mutually convenient time. The Government 25 anticipates this to occur well before the in limine date.

1 E. THE CUSTODIAN'S EXPLANATION OF THE 2 RELEVANT DOCUMENTS IS ADMISSIBLE

3 The defendant moves to preclude the A-file custodian from 4 testifying about the documents contained in defendant's file because 5 of a lack of personal knowledge of the events. One need not be an 6 expert to be familiar with the significance of documents. Nor does 7 the custodian need to have personal knowledge of the specific events 8 that caused the documents to be generated.

9 The immigration documents generated by the immigration service 10 are no different than other business records. For instance, a 11 custodian of a bank does not need personal knowledge of every 12 transaction to explain how checks are cashed or records of 13 transactions are compiled. If a check had a person's signature (and 14 sometimes fingerprint) on it, and was processed through the bank, the 15 records of the bank are admissible to show that the person caused the 16 check to be processed. The bank custodian does not need to have 17 personal knowledge of the individual transaction to explain the bank's 18 process.

19 The difference in the present case to the check example, is that 20 most of the general public who serve as jurors will not be familiar 21 with the forms used by the immigration service. Defendant's motion 22 to preclude the custodian's testimony is really an attempt to 23 capitalize on the general public's ignorance of immigration procedures
24 to instill confusion in the jurors' minds. The custodian's 25 explanation of the forms and the process related to the forms is 26 admissible evidence that will decrease the potential juror confusion 27 regarding an unfamiliar topic.

28 //

1 F. THE CUSTODIAN CAN TESTIFY ABOUT AN 2 ABSENCE OF RECORD

3 Defendant moves this court to preclude the custodian from 4 testifying about searching a database for records. Evidence of an 5 absence of record is admissible under FRE § 803(7) and (10). The 6 custodian is entitled to testify that the records of the A-file are 7 kept in the ordinary course of business. The custodian's familiarity 8 with how the document's are generated also entitles him to testify 9 what documents would be generated in the event defendant had applied 10 for permission to enter the country. In the event the documents had 11 been generated and were en route to the A-file, the custodian is 12 qualified to testify that he knows where to look for documents that 13 should be tracked to the entire file. Consequently, the custodian is 14 able to testify about searching the databases to establish an absence 15 of record in the A-file.

16 G. DEFENDANT'S ABILITY TO IMPEACH A 17 HEARSAY DECLARANT SHOULD BE LIMITED

18 Defendant moves this court to permit him to impeach hearsay
19 declarants. The Government does not dispute that hearsay declarant 20 may be impeached, but the right and ability to do so is not unlimited.
21 In the past, the Government is aware of attempts by defendants to 22 offer evidence of events at the central record depository in Laguna 23 Niguel, California. One defendant sought to subpoena the Washington 24 DC resident who signed the Certificate of Non-existence. Such 25 attempts to impeach hearsay declarants are unduly burdensome and are 26 designed to cause confusion rather than a legitimate attempt to offer 27 relevant evidence. In the event that defendant's attempts to impeach 28 the declarants raise the specter of some speculative problem with the

1 records, or attempt to impose an undue burden upon the declarant, the 2 probative value of that evidence does not outweigh the prejudicial
3 effect and the confusion it may cause. Consequently, such attempts
4 to impeach the declarant should be refused by this court under FRE 5 403.

6 III

7 CONCLUSION

8 For the foregoing reasons, the Government respectfully requests 9 that defendant's motions in limine be denied and granted where 10 unopposed.
